GUS HYATT IS KILLED

Police Chief in Oklahoma Stops Outlaw in Pistol Duel

HYATT'S VISIT TO THESE PARTS VIVIDLY RECALLED

Bartlesville, Okla., Mar. 14.—The body of a man killed last week in a revolver battle with Charles Allen, chief of police, has been identified by Memphis, Tenn., officers as that of Gus Hyatt, a notorious bandit, who led a daring mutiny at the Tennessee penitentiary twelve years ago.

Hyatt smuggled dynamite into the prison and used it to wreck the prison wall. Then while he covered the guards with revolvers fifteen convicts escaped. At one time $10,000 was offered for Hyatt's capture.

Hyatt was serving a term for a daring holdup of a Louisville & Nashville railroad train when he escaped. He accomplished the robbery alone, obtaining several thousand dollars. Chief Allen was attempting to arrest Hyatt on a charge of selling liquor illegally when the fatal fight took place.

When Hyatt Ran From Earlington Posse

The story of the killing of Gus Hyatt in Oklahoma has revived the memory of Hyatt's operations in this vicinity some time prior to the L. & N. holdup which landed him in the Tennessee penitentiary from which he escaped twelve years ago. For a time Hyatt's name sent a thrill of uneasiness through the spines of many people living in this section of Hopkins county, where he was suspected of making his rendezvous in the wooded hills. He in fact did visit this section and his arrest was sought by local officials. Once he heldup and robbed a traveler and the news was promptly brought to Earlington. John T. Barnett was then city marshal of Earlington and was at Madisonville when he got the news. He came here as fast as his horse could carry him, the blood-hounds were ready, a posse was summoned quickly and the hunt was on in short order. He had a live posse, too, consisting of Rufus N. Clark, J. B. Lindle, Marion McCord and J. T. Denton. The trail was fresh and led in a round about way to the home of Wes Cody west of Earlington. The posse had separated and Barnett, Lindle and McCord arrived at the house, while Clark and Denton were off in another quarter. When Barnett drove up to the front of the house he saw Hyatt sitting inside, hot and flushed from running with a revolver in his hand. Barnett stepped out of his buggy and walked straight for the front door, with his pistol in hand. Hyatt concluded it was a better time to run than to fight and realized no doubt that there were numbers against him as well, so he went for the back door and ran out through the garden. Lindle was down at one side of the garden fence and was armed only with a .32-calibre revolver. He ordered Hyatt to halt and then fired the contents of his pistol at the fleeing fugitive, one ball clipping a splinter from the fence just at Hyatt's hand as he was getting over. Hyatt did not return the fire, probably holding it for a possible close-quarter fight later. Barnett had no chance to do anything. The posse then beat the brush carefully over the surrounding country but got no trace of the outlaw. Afterwards numerous rumors came from time to time that Hyatt was again in the neighborhood but the officers never saw him any more.

"Sunday Base Ball"

Editor Bee:—

At your invitation I wish to reply to the communication in the issue of March 10th on "Sunday Baseball."

I regret that one who believes so strongly in his position as the writer of the article evidently does not leave us in doubt as to his identity. Surely if any position is worthy of consideration one should not hesitate signing his name to it.

Let me say first I am not one who classes Baseball with crap shooting and other immoral games. I am a supporter of the game when it is kept clean. No out door sport appeals to me more strongly. I watch the game enthusiastically.

But it is the tendency to turn Sunday into a day of frolic and revelry to which I am opposed. Sunday baseball is a part of this tendency and is the entering wedge toward the "wide open" Sunday. All people who want Sunday recreation do not care for baseball. Some would prefer the moving picture show, some the pool room, others the theatre. One of these has the same right to have his desire satisfied as the other, and the right of one place to run on Sunday argues the right of the other.

Then there is the color line which cannot be drawn. If the whites are to play on Sunday so will the blacks. As the interest in the games intensifies we will have excursions from nearby towns, unloading on the town a class of people who are thinking little of church going or the standards preached there.

I have lived in a city where the "wide open" policy prevailed and have carefully observed its immoral tendencies. Any careful observer of the "Continental Sunday" as contrasted with the observance of the day in America cannot help observing that one of the greatest safeguards to morals in this country is the sacredness attached to the Lord's Day.

I cannot feel the writer takes himself seriously when he says it would be a glorious thing to see the preachers leading their flocks to the game on Sunday afternoon and cheering the home team to victory. Those who favor the Sunday game might be glad for the sanction given their position by the preacher's presence, and look upon him as a 'good fellow'

EFFECT OF THE INSURANCE SUSPENSION

Experience of Missouri Last Year Shows What Kentucky May Expect

Fire insurance companies doing business in Kentucky have been forced to suspend writing because of the enactment of the Glenn Greene bill, under which they claim that it is impossible for them to do business with safety or profit. This withdrawal of insurance protection will have a very material effect upon the business, credit and prosperity of the state. In view of this a review of what happened in Missouri, when the fire insurance companies were forced to suspend operations last year because of similarly objectionable legislation, is of interest.

The general result in Missouri was to restrict commercial credits, check the making of loans and mortgages, divert business from the state, lessen business activities and throw labor out of employment. The evil effects in Kentucky threaten to be more serious and immediate than in Missouri. In the latter state the companies gave several weeks notice of their intention to stop writing on a given day, and the commercial interests had time to protect all their insurance requirements for several months to come, although this frequently involved double insurance. In Kentucky, however, the bill pending in the legislature, imposing a heavy penalty upon insurance companies for suspending the writing of business made it unsafe for them to give this advance notice, and their suspension was immediate.

The first effect of the suspension in Missouri, as it probably will be in Kentucky, was to affect commercial credits. Fire insurance is the basis of commercial credit, the wholesalers and manufacturers insisting that their goods unpaid for in the hands of retailers must be protected by sound fire insurance. As soon as the wholesalers found that this insurance protection was endangered they reduced their lines of credit and insisted upon immediate payment. The important banks, life insurance companies and other money-lending interests stopped negotiations for loans and mortgages because the property upon which their money was secured could not be protected with insurance, and gave notice that existing loans would not be renewed. The result was that building operations in the large cities of Missouri, amounting to millions of dollars, was stopped until the insurance suspension was ended, with losses all down the line to contractors, supply men and thousands of workmen and building laborers.

Dealers in grain, cotton, tobacco, whiskey and warehouse produce, who had been accustomed to get loans from banks on bills of lading, accompanied by insurance policies, were unable to get such accommodation, and in consequence enormous quantities of such staples were taken out of the state or diverted from their usual destination.

In addition to the effect upon large and important business enterprises, the small householder, who requires a loan protected by an insurance policy to build his home or protect his mortgage, was unable to secure protection. In consequence building permits fell off sharply, and all supply and labor interests were affected.

The fire insurance patrols, fire prevention association and other bodies dependent upon insurance taxation were forced to suspend and withhold their protection and service to the public.

The insurance agents, who are usually among the desirable citizens in every community, were deprived of their income and livelihood during the period of suspension.

A great deal of property was burned on which the insurance had expired and could not be renewed, resulting in a total loss to the property owner. In consequence the building and stocks were not promptly replaced, as would have been possible had they been insured.

Because of these and many other reasons, and because the state was getting an unenviable reputation throughout the country as hostile to business interests, the leading commercial organizations of Missouri made every effort to secure a correction of conditions. The State Bankers' Association, associations of commerce and commercial clubs of St. Louis and Kansas City and scores of other cities, and influential individuals petitioned the governor to call a special session of the legislature to repeal the obnoxious law. The protests of the business interests, forced by their necessities, finally became so strong that the state arranged a compromise with the insurance companies, under which they were enabled to resume business with safety. Under this compromise the attorney general declared void and illegal the specially obnoxious feature of the Orr law, the suits begun against the insurance companies by the state were dropped, and a commission was appointed by the governor to formulate a new and up-to-date code of insurance laws for the state, which would secure the desirable end of lower rates by reducing the fires which are the basis of rates, instead of enacting laws which merely increase the cost of insurance.

but I am free to say few, if any would have respect for the preacher or the religion he represents. The public may not want a silly quality of piety in the parsons but it does want men who stand four square in daily life for the things they preach on Sunday.

Let it not be thought I am not in sympathy with harmless amusements or that I forget that many have little opportunity for recreation. I stand ready to push any movement providing wholesome fun. Why not have Saturday afternoon for half-holiday as is becoming the case in many places. Such a holiday would give opportunity for recreation. I would be glad to go with any committee to the business men of the city seeking such an adjustment as would make such a thing possible. What say you?

Sincerely,
Howard J. Beazleton.

Chronic Stomach Trouble Cured

There is nothing more discouraging than a chronic disorder of the stomach. It is not surprising that many suffer for years with such an ailment when a permanent cure is within their reach and may be had for a trifle? "About one year ago," says P. H. Beck, of Wakelee, Mich., "I bought a package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and since using them I have felt perfectly well. I had previously used any number of different medicines, but none of them were of any lasting benefit. For sale by all Dealers."

WILL SINK ANOTHER WELL

No Doubt About Oil in Hopkins Co. Lucian Littlepage and Others

GO TO WORK IN EARNEST.

The success met with in sinking the two test wells in the Hopkins county oil fields near Mortons Gap have encouraged the promoters to sink another large well in the same vicinity. Messrs. Lucian Littlepage, H. P. Barret, David Clark and W. W. Kington have made arrangements to begin work at once. The machinery is on the ground and erected for sinking the large well. This company own 30,000 acres of land in this county and as the two test wells struck are furnishing five barrels of oil per day they are reasonably sure the large well will be a paying investment. It will be a great thing for this county if the big well turns out to be a gusher and the many friends of the genial gentlemen hope such will be the case.

Mrs. Mattie Huff Dead

The many friends of Mrs. Mattie Huff will regret to learn of her death at noon today. Mrs. Huff has been in ill health for several years having suffered a great deal with heart affection. She was a well known and lovable woman and numbered her friends by her acquaintances. She had long been a member of the Christian church and was a devoted christian woman.

She leaves two sons, Len Huff, of Hopkinsville, Joe Huff, of this place, and two daughters, Miss Lizzie Huff, also of this place and Mrs. Hollingsworth, of Howell, Ind. The interment will take place at the Earlington cemetery Thursday afternoon.

Compressed Natural Gas

A company has been formed for compressing natural gas from the West Virginia and Oklahoma fields into a liquid, and to distribute the product over the country for illuminating and power purposes. The inventors of the process say that liquid gas will give off 400 cubic feet of gas for each one cubic foot of the liquid.

After compression the liquid gas is to be placed in tanks which withstand a pressure of 1,500 pounds to the square inch, but the gas will be put into the tanks at 400 pounds pressure to the square inch. The problem of compressing and selling natural gas in this form has been often discussed, but natural gas men have said that it is impractical. Whether the process of the new company will be a success cannot now be told, but if it proves commercially successful it may open up a new industry for the great natural gas fields of the country.

Harsh physics react, weaken the bowels, will lead to chronic constipation. Doan's Regulator operate easily. 25c a box at all stores.

FORTY YEARS IN BUSINESS

E. G. McLeod, Head of Big Department Store, Has Had Successful Career

BEGAN IN EARLINGTON 1874

Forty years in business, beginning as a clerk for what experience he could gain and now at the head of the largest retail store in Western Kentucky, is the record of which E. G. McLeod, president and general manager of the McLeod Store, may feel justly proud.

In 1874 Mr. McLeod began clerking in Earlington at the Hecla store without salary in order to gain experience and remained there four months. He then went to the St. Bernard Coal Co. at a salary of $5 a week and board. He remained with the St. Bernard four months and then went back with the Hecla store at $30 a month, during which time he saved enough to buy a small peanut stand, 10x12 feet. In Jan., 1878 he bought out John Brasher, increased the business and made good there remaining until 1894, when he located at Madisonville. His success since coming to Madisonville is so well known as to scarcely need comment.

The institution of which he is the head is the largest retail establishment in Western Kentucky. It was organized as a department store that would do credit to any of the larger cities of the country.

The career of Mr. McLeod shows what may be accomplished by young men who have self denial, energy and persistency of effort.

The McLeod Store is a monument to his enterprise and a credit to Madisonville and Hopkins county.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

To be Observed by Earlington Churches March Twenty-ninth

At a meeting of the pastors of the various churches of the city last week, together with a number of representative laymen, it was determined to propose to the people of the city that Sunday, March, 29th be designated as "Go to Church Sunday" in Earlington, and that every one, big little, old and young, be urged to attend some church on that day. Observing people have noticed that such a day has been observed in many cities, large as well as small, with splendid results.

Realizing that many people grow lax in their church attendance, and come to regard the church as commonplace in spite of the constant service it is rendering even during their indifference it is felt that an awakening along this line will be helpful to the community life.

Every Protestant church in the city with its pastor is represented in this campaign and will push it vigorously. The Bee is glad to offer its columns in furthering such a movement that can mean only good to the moral life of the city.

PORK BARREL ROAD BUILDING.

When enthusiastic advocates of good roads from all parts of the country meet in convention it is inevitable that a number of ill considered plans should be proposed, plans that would do far more harm than good to the cause.

One of these is the proposition that the federal government should vote an indefinite number of millions for the work and place the money in the hands of the local authorities. That simply means dividing it among the constituencies that have returned congressmen with a pull. It is the old rivers and harbors plan, which has wasted more millions of public money than would suffice to build a road from Detroit to New Orleans and keep it in repair for twenty years, not to speak of laying out a grassy boulevard strip and a footwalk on either side of it. This money has been deliberately shoveled into little harbors that were never heard of before and that which never sheltered anything bigger than a tug or a fishing boat.—Better Roads.

P. O. DEPARTMENT AND GOOD ROADS.

It Directs Co-operation With Authorities For Improvement.

Good roads movements throughout the country are to have substantial support from the postoffice department.

First Assistant Postmaster General Roper has notified officially postmasters of all classes that "it is the desire of the department that they co-operate with state and county authorities in the endeavor to improve the condition of the public roads.

"The department's attention," continues Mr. Roper, "has been attracted to proclamations issued from time to time by the governors of states designating certain days as good roads days, and postmasters, as representatives in their communities of the national government, are expected to manifest as active an interest in this movement as is consistent with the proper performance of their official duties."

COST OF DRAGGING ROADS.

C. F. Chase of North Dakota Agricultural College Gives Estimates.

At the home farm in southeastern Nebraska, writes Professor Chase, there is a stretch of road a half mile in length that we have dragged for seven years. Only once during this period has this road been worked with anything but the drag. Two years ago the side ditches were cleaned with the common road grader.

A careful record of the time taken to keep this road dragged has been kept, and for the first five years it runs as follows:

Two trips for one man and one team requiring one hour's time for one dragging is the basis taken. The first year we dragged it fifteen times, the second thirteen, the third seventeen, the fourth twelve and the fifth fourteen times, or seventy-one draggings of one hour's time during five years. This at 30 cents an hour for man and team is $4.26 a year for the half mile. For a mile it would be $8.52 annual cost of maintenance. Another road in the immediate vicinity cost less than $10 per mile annually. The soil is not quite as heavy as Red river soil, but the rainfall is a little more than thirty inches. A case is noted in Public Roads Bulletin 48, United States department of agriculture, where the cost of similar maintenance of roads in Arkansas was $11 per mile. State Engineer Gerhart of Kansas puts the range of cost for dragging at from $4 to $10.

The cost for North Dakota should not be over $10 per mile, while in most cases it would be much less. The cost depending upon the character of the soil, the rainfall, traffic and grade. As an average for all dirt roads I would place the annual cost of maintenance at $7.50 per mile or $400.740 to drag in a satisfactory manner the roads in North Dakota one year.

The total expenditure on public roads of North Dakota outside of towns in 1911 was $291,540. If properly organized and if the people were educated we could properly maintain our earth road with present road fund and have $230,800 left for bridges, new construction, etc.

INSURANCE COMPANIES NOT REVENGEFUL

They Are Standing For Principle at a Loss to Themselves and Their Agents

State officials in Kentucky are trying to distract attention from the Glenn-Greene law, which is responsible for all the troubles the people are having over the fire insurance situation, by ignoring that law and charging that the companies are in rebellion against the constituted authority of the state, and are trying to harass and punish the people of Kentucky. In reality the insurance companies are standing by a principle at great cost to themselves and their agents. If the companies had sought to punish the people of Kentucky they could have cancelled their entire insurance in force, which would have precipitated business chaos, instead of merely stopping the writing of further policies.

The companies are actually suffering severely for a principle. They have cut off a premium income of $5,000,000 a year, and are carrying a liability of insurance in force of $400,000,000, subject to a crushing conflagration loss at any moment, but without any compensation premium income. It is true that the business in Kentucky for the past two years has been unprofitable, the companies having paid out about $1.10 for every dollar they have received in the state. It was not because of this that the companies stopped business, however, for insurance is necessarily optimistic, and the companies are always hoping that the tide of losses will turn. But any saving on future fires is more than offset by the losses in other ways. The companies are suffering from the adverse effect on their agency plants, which have been built up through many years at great labor and expense, and which will naturally depreciate as a result of the suspension, because of the many agents who will go into other lines. They are also opening the way to the competitions of mutuals, inter-insurance concerns, wildcats and the various forms of more or less discredited insurance which has a chance only when the standard protection is not available. The insurance agents of Kentucky bear the brunt of the burden, since their income is cut off entirely, and it is estimated that the commissions on the Kentucky business amount to $1,000,000 a year. The companies are not doing this ruthlessly, and that the agents appreciate this fact is shown by the loyalty with which they are bearing their share of the burden, realizing that no other course was open to companies. With these facts in mind, it is plain that the insurance companies are not taking their present course in Kentucky merely to be revengeful or dictatorial, but simply because they are forced to this attitude by reckless and ruthless legislative interference with business.

A HAPPY CHILD IN JUST A FEW HOURS

When Cross, Constipated or if Feverish
Give "California Syrup of Figs"
Then Don't Worry

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs" because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it cannot cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomachache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Dipepsin"—Try This!

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dypeptic, jot this down: Pape's Dipepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Dipepsin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Dipepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Dipepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

ARMSTRONG RETURNS TO EARLINGTON

Arrested and Recognized—Trial Fixed For Wednesday Evening

In an altercation Saturday night between Frank B. Arnold and Ohio Armstrong, Armstrong struck Arnold, inflicting slight wounds over the right eye and on the right cheek bone with what was reported at the time to be "knucks." Armstrong is said to have made ugly threats and bystanders interfered to prevent further trouble. Armstrong left on train No. 94 before a warrant was issued for his arrest, a very short time after the difficulty. He went to Evansville where he was arrested Sunday but released Monday and returned to Earlington late Monday night. He was arrested Tuesday morning by Deputy Joe Barnett and trial is set for Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock.

"Tell It By The Bell"

Why Snow is Warm.

Snow is warm by virtue of its light and woolly texture. But it is also warm on account of its whiteness. Had snow been black it would have absorbed the heat of the sun and melted quickly. Instead, it reflects heat, and the reflected heat falls upon bodies above the snow, while the warmth of the earth is preserved below.

Until the Plumber Arrives.

While waiting for the arrival of a plumber, when the water pipes have sprung a leak, the housewife may do a little repairing herself. The water should be turned off and a solder made by mixing some whiting with common yellow soap and just enough water to form a thick paste. Apply this mixture to the leak and in a little while the water may be turned on very safely. This solder may last a day or longer.

FOR DELICATE CHILDREN

A Mother's Letter to Mothers.

Mrs. E. W. Cooper of Bloomfield, N. J., says: "My child, seven years old, had a bad cold and was weak and quite run down in health. She had been in this condition for about six weeks when I began giving her Vinol. It was a wonderful help to the child, breaking up her cold quickly and building up her strength beside. I have also found Vinol a most excellent tonic for keeping up the children's strength during a siege of whooping cough."

Vinol is a wonderful combination of two world-famed tonics—the medicinal body building elements of cod liver oil and iron for the blood, therefore it is a perfectly safe medicine for children, because it is not a patent medicine, everything in it is printed on every package, so mothers may know what they are giving their little ones.

Therefore we ask every mother of a weak, sickly or ailing child in this vicinity to try Vinol on our guarantee.

The Price She Paid for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Which Brought Good Health

Danville, Va.—"I have only spent ten dollars on your medicine and I feel so much better than I did when the doctor was treating me. I don't suffer any bearing down pains at all now and I sleep well. I cannot say enough for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills as they have done so much for me. I am enjoying good health now and owe it all to your remedies. I take pleasure in telling my friends and neighbors about them."—Mrs. MATTIE HALEY, 501 Colquhoun Street, Danville, Va.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Are You Suffering From Auto-Intoxication?

The dictionary says that Auto-Intoxication is "poisoning, or the state of being poisoned, from toxic substances produced within the body." This is a condition due to the stomach, bowels, kidneys, liver, or pores of the body failing to throw off the poisons. More than 50% of adults are suffering from this trouble. This is probably why you are suffering from nervousness, headaches, loss of appetite, lack of ambition, and many other symptoms produced by Auto-Intoxication. Your whole system needs stirring up.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

(In Tablet or Liquid Form)

will remedy the trouble. It first aids the system to expel accumulated poisons. It acts as a tonic and finally enables the body to eliminate its own poisons without any outside aid. Obey Nature's warnings. Your dealer in medicines will supply you, or you may send 50c for a sample package of tablets by mail. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Stevenson's Criticism.

Robert Louis Stevenson once went to hear Charles Halle play the piano at the Queen's hall. After the performance Stevenson, in his black shirt, walked in silence out Regent street to Oxford circus. He stepped at Oxford circus and, in a slow, meditative voice, pronounced this excellent criticism on the English musician he had heard: "The man use of the elderly statesman at the piano was somewhat austere and chilling."

Practical Ventilating Hint.

The house should be ventilated in winter as well as in summer if the family is to be kept in good health. Bedrooms, especially, should be provided with a free circulation of fresh air. One way to get fresh air in a bedroom without having a draft is to tack strips of cheesecloth across the top and the bottom of the window so that when it is opened in both places the fresh air will enter the room and yet, should there be a strong wind, its force will be broken by the cloth.

Chamberlain's Tablets

For Constipation

For constipation, Chamberlain's Tablets are excellent. Easy to take, mild and gentle in effect. Give them a trial. For sale by all Dealers.

Bishop Not Qualified.

Comments by the bishop of London (Dr. Ingram) on the falling birth-rate were quoted by counsel in a case in the Clerkenwell court when Judge Cluer remarked: 'What has the bishop to do with it? He is not married. Example is better than precept.'

Asbestos.

Asbestos is a mineral of a fine fibrous character, the fibers being easily separated, elastic, flexible, and of a whitish-gray color. It is composed chiefly of silica, lime, magnesia, and oxide of iron. The ancients converted it into a kind of cloth, in which they wrapped the bodies of their dead, while preparing them for the funeral pile; the cloth being indestructible by fire, enabled them to preserve the ashes. Asbestos is found more abundantly in Corsica than in any other locality.

The Forty Year Test

An article must have exceptional merit to survive for a period of forty years. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was first offered to the public in 1872. From a small beginning it has grown in favor and popularity until it has attained a world-wide reputation. You will find nothing better for a cough or cold. Try it and you will understand why it is a favorite after a period of more than forty years. It not only cures Croup—it cures. For sale by all Dealers.

Best Friend.

There is one friend who will never fail you while you have hands to move and a brain to plan. In your darkest hours she will be your sweet refuge, and in times of prosperity she will guard you from the pride which wealth begets. She will bring you long nights of restful sleep at the end of your busy days and when other friends grow careless or disdainful she will absorb you more and more. Her name is Work, and neither the highest nor the lowest can be happy for long without her.

Stubborn, Annoying Coughs Cured.

My husband had a cough for fifteen years and my son for 8 years. Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured them, for which I am most thankful," writes Mrs. David Moor, of Saginaw, Ala. What Dr. King's New Discovery did for these men, it will do for you. Dr. King's New Discovery should be in every home. Stops the coughing, relieves the asthma and all throat and lung ailments. Money back if it fails. All druggists. Price 50c and $1.00. H. E. Bucklin & Co., Philadelphia or St. Louis.

Worth Knowing.

Never throw away pieces of lemon after they have been squeezed with the lemon squeezer, for they come in handy for removing stains from the hands and elsewhere. Dipped into salt they will absorb copper, silver, and remove stains from brasswork. Lemon like this will take stains, dirt, and odor from pans and kettles as quickly as with any other. The odors of fish and onions can thus be easily removed.

Peter Billy's Clothes

They Were Characteristic of the Man

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"I got a hunch that this is my last year as a lone, lorn bachelor man," sang out Peter Billy as he put on a celluloid collar that cruelly sawed his sunburned neck. He picked up a brilliant red and blue striped necktie and tossed the end around the collar.

"I reckon you think that this nigger minstrel getup's going to put you at the head of schoolteacher's class," grumbled Phin Morris from the doorstep of the bunk house. "Looks like a barber's pole."

"Nigger minstrel getup, eh? You're plumb jealous, Phin," retorted Peter Billy. "A feller can't put on a billed shirt and a plain, ordinary necktie what they wear in civilized parts but what you kick up a fuss."

Who can blame poor Phin for sitting on the doorstep and indulging in gibes at his more fortunate rival's marvelous garments?

"It's going to be some dance at the schoolhouse next week," volunteered Peter Billy as he stepped past Phin into the starlit night.

"Maybe I'll go," said Phin dreamily. "The Dray girls are coming and a big crowd from Onderdonk. Mazie's going with me!" Peter Billy dashed away into the night, and to the clatter of his pony's hoofs Phin could hear the refrain of Peter's last gay words: "Mazie's going with me!"

Mazie Fenwick was the schoolteacher. Two hundred miles distant, in a Cheyenne hospital, an old man had suffered a sudden sinking spell. There was no time to send for his only relative, a cowpuncher, in another part of the state, so the nurse, a pale, sweet faced young woman, was listening to the weakening voice of old David Morris.

"Miss Drew, I got plenty of money of my own. It tells all about it in that letter I gave you. But you know I've been accepting charity from my nephew, Phin Morris? Of course you know; I told you all about it, and you wonder why I kept him stripped of his money for the last year. "Phinny was a wild boy, and I've been afraid that he'd go wrong entirely with that wild bunch at Keeter's ranch. So I just let him think I was hard up, and so he's paid $20 a month out of his $30 on me, and I've sent it to the bank. I let him do it. It showed he's made of good metal. He's got the Morris blood in him, and he'll come out all right.

"I'd like to have seen him, but I can't now, and you'll go down there and tell him all this and bring him back with you?"

"I'll go," promised the girl. "You know it's my vacation, anyway."

And later in the day, when there was no more to be done, Nan Drew took the letters and boarded the train that would reach Onderdonk Creek at daylight the following morning. Once there, she went to the hotel and sent word to Keeter's ranch for Phin Morris to come to her.

She was hardly prepared for the strapping young man whose head almost touched the ceiling of the hotel parlor and whose big voice filled every nook and cranny of the room.

And Phin was plainly embarrassed in the presence of the pretty little nurse who had come all the way from Cheyenne to carry out the last wishes of an old man.

Poor Phin was overcome with embarrassment when he discovered that Uncle David had confided all his affairs to Nan Drew, but the girl accomplished her mission so delicately and with such tact that Phin felt almost glad that his uncle had chosen such a sweet messenger.

"You don't look real strong yourself," said Phin looking down at her delicate face.

"I'm not very well; I'm very tired," said the girl wearily. "But this air is wonderful. I feel better already."

"Can't you come and spend your vacation down here?" asked Phin eagerly. "They take lady boarders over to Dray's ranch. They learn to ride ponies and get brown as berries. You better come down here, and I'll teach you to ride."

"Perhaps I will," cried Nan. "It sounds very attractive."

"Now I've got to go back to the ranch and tell Keeter I must have a few days off. I reckon I'll get in Cheyenne some time late tonight."

It was three months later when Phin Morris, riding down the trail toward Onderdonk Creek, overtook Mazie Fenwick riding her little calico pony.

"Stranger," reproached Mazie, with a dazzling smile.

Phin could execute a dazzling smile as well, and he proceeded to make himself agreeable to Miss Fenwick.

He knew that for some reason Peter Billy was in the bad graces of the pretty schoolteacher, but Peter Billy was very reticent about the whole matter. As for Phin, he spent many of his evenings studying books, and Mazie had heard of it and dreamed that he was endeavoring to educate himself to her level.

"I'm nearly famished," sighed Mazie as they turned into the main street of the little town.

"Come in and have some ice cream," invited Phin cheerily.

They went, and Mazie's blue eyes gleamed when she saw that Phin Morris' pocketbook was not as empty as it had been in former days. Some one had whispered the story of the bedridden uncle who had left a fortune to the handsome young cowpuncher, and Phin had mounted higher in selfish Mazie's estimation.

Still he wore the same old clothes.

"Phin," said Mazie suddenly, dropping her hand on his big brown one in a friendly manner. "why don't you ever come to see me any more?"

"Too busy," smiled Phin uncomfortably. "Besides, Peter Billy's always had the front seat, you know."

"He's not sitting on the front seat now," retorted Mazie, with spirit.

"And he's some sore because he fell off," rejoined Phin.

"I'm not to blame for that—really, am I, now?" Mazie turned her cornflower blue eyes upon Phin, and her under lip trembled.

Time had been when that demonstration would have sent ecstatic shivers up and down Phin's spinal column. Now he shuddered uncomfortably, thinking what a blessing it was that he had missed marrying Mazie Fenwick.

"I am not to blame, am I, Phin?" quavered Mazie, with tearful eyes.

"I'm not a good judge. Peter Billy knows more about it than I do," said Phin reluctantly. "You see, Mazie, I was way back in the thirteenth row."

"You're only joking!" cried Mazie angrily. "I guess it won't be any joke if that white faced nurse over at Dray's goes back to Cheyenne. She's—"

"She's my girl," said Phin slowly, and Mazie flinched at the cold anger in his voice and the hostility in his gray eyes. "I reckon we won't talk about Nan Drew."

Mazie said never a word, but she set her teeth hard and left the store at once. By the time Phin had paid the bill and had reached the sidewalk Mazie had mounted her pony and down back along the trail toward home.

"Poor, selfish little girl!" muttered Phin uneasily.

On the way home Phin met Peter Billy riding desperately toward the town. He was wearing all his gala attire, and there was a glad look in his black eyes.

He stopped short at the sight of Phin.

"I reckon it won't hurt none if I tell you that she's sent for me!" he cried eagerly. "I guess that there hunch of mine has come true! I won't be no bachelor next year!"

"You mean Mazie?" asked Phin, and when the other held out his hand Phin gripped it hard. How was Peter Billy to know that the prize he dreamed he was getting was merely a poor tinseled package stuffed with sawdust?

So Peter Billy went joyfully on his way, and Phin turned into the trail that led to Dray's farm, where Nan Drew had been spending many happy months.

He met her on the trail. She was riding a cream colored pony and looking bewitching in her brown riding dress, with a wide brimmed hat on her golden brown hair. She had grown plump and rosy, and a golden tan covered her face and hands.

"She's my golden girl," whispered Phin, and then he felt suddenly scared at something he had to confess to Nan Drew.

"Come with me to Little Green canyon; I got something to say to you," said Phin seriously, so they rode there almost in silence.

And when they looked down on the green, cuplike hollow in the hills Phin leaned over and took Nan's little hand.

"Nan Drew," he said solemnly, "I just told somebody that you was my girl! Is it true?"

Nan lifted lovely, long lashed eyes and looked long into his loving gray ones. Then she turned to him with a little tender gesture of surrender and said:

"Of course I am your girl, Phin. I've never been any one else's."

"Gee, but I'm glad Peter Billy's a swell dresser!" remarked Phin after a while, and although Nan tried many a time to discover Phin's reason for making such a remark, Phin never told her. Perhaps poor Peter Billy might have guessed, or Mazie herself.
